

Appointment of Remy Fassin succeeding Severine Bersauter

Saint-Denis, July 1st 2021

Séverine Bersauter joined Biogroup in September 2019 as CFO to support Biogroup growth and bring her expertise in investor relation, reporting and financial structuring as demonstrated by the very successful inaugural issue on the bond market last February.

At the same time, Severine Bersauter and Rémy Fassin have launched a project to optimize financial processes and tools to support the Group's growth.

Séverine now considers that most of the projects that motivated her to join the Group have been completed or launched; she is now looking to move on to new challenges, and to find a broader field of action, not limited purely to the finance function, and in which she will be able to play the role of business partner with PE funds.

After having been CFO of Laborizon for several years and CFO of various companies before that, Rémy Fassin has been operational at the head of the finance department for a few months, in tandem with Séverine. He will now hand over his new function with all of Biogroup's finance teams, present in the subsidiaries and at top level and which are destined to grow over the coming months.
